AUGUST 4th, 1757. [Numb. 1198.]

The SOUTH-CAROLINA Gazette.

DRESDEN, April 28.

IF ever plan was concerted with ſyſtem, and arranged and executed with method, we may juſtly ſay, 'tis this which the king of Pruſſia has juſt followed. All his troops were in motion between the 18th and 22d to enter Bohemia in four Places, thereby obliging the Auſtrians to divide their forces, &c

Prince Henry of Pruſſia having been charged by the king his brother, with the command of a body of troops which he had orders to aſſemble at Neuſtadt, in the mountainous part of Saxony: This corps was ready to enter Bohemia within a day of the grand army; ſo that theſe divers operations being executed at the ſame time, one favoured the ſucceſs of the other.

As ſoon as the king of Pruſſia had entered Bohemia, his majeſty ſent orders to field marſhal Schwerin, to the prince of Bevern, prince Maurice of Anhalt Deſſaw, and to his royal highneſs prince Henry, for each of them to advance, with their different corps into the heart of the kingdom, in order, by the celerity of their march, to confound the diſpoſitions of the enemy, and to prevent their aſſembling in bodies. From all which, 'tis preſumed, we are at the eve of the moſt bloody battle that has for many years ſtained the plains of Bohemia. A number of Engliſh and Dutch officers, &c follow the army of his majeſty in quality of volunteers, to be witneſſes of the grand events of this campaign.

LONDON, May 5

A Larger fleet will ſail in a few days for the Mediterranean than has for ſome days been reported or repreſented; neceſſity pleading loudly in behalf thereof.

Yeſterday morning a meſſenger arrived at St. James's, with an expreſs from the king of Pruſſia, who has brought an account of count Brown's having detached an army of 20,000 men towards Egra, which the king of Pruſſia gaining intelligence of, detached an army of the like number, who met them, gave them battle, and entirely defeated them, killed 4000, and have taken all their baggage, cannon, &c.

There are other letters in town which give an account that the Pruſſians conſiſted of 25,000 men, and the Auſtrians of 30,000, and that the number of the latter, killed, wounded, and taken priſoners, amounted to 15,000 Theſe advices add, that 3 ſtrong fortified towns have ſurrendered, and that his Pruſſian majeſty, at the head of 80,000 men, had entered Bohemia, in order to give battle to count Brown.

Briſtol, May 7. The Cæſar privateer, Capt. Nath, has taken two outward bound French ſhips, and was in chace of two more. The 13th ult ſhe engaged a French frigate of 36 guns, for 3 hours and a quarter, on the 15th, for 3 hours and 5 quarters, and on the 16th for 6 hours, in which ſhe carried away all the frigate's maſts, and left her almoſt a wreck, for ſhe had not men enough to take her. The Cæſar had one man killed, and 22 wounded.

By Capt. Lyford, in 13 Days from Antigua, we have the following very agreeable Accounts, taken from the Antigua Gazette of July 12, viz.

From the LONDON GAZETTE EXTRAORDINARY.

WHITEHALL, May 20.

LAST night an expreſs arrived from Col. Yorke, his majeſty's miniſter plenipotentiary at the Hague, with the following account of the victory obtained by the king of Pruſſia over the Auſtrian army on the 6th Inſtant, as received from Berlin, by M. de Heilen, his Pruſſian majeſty's miniſter at the Hague.

Berlin, May 10 You have been already apprized of the rapid progreſs of the king's arms in Bohemia; and I have now the pleaſure to inform you of the glorious event with which it has pleaſed Heaven to crown theſe firſt ſucceſſes, in a compleat victory obtained by his majeſty near Prague, on the 6th inſtant, over the whole combined force of the houſe of Auſtria.

The king having been informed that marſhal Brown had been reinforced by the army from Moravia, by the remainder of the corps which was beat by the prince of Bevern, and by ſeveral regiments of the garriſon of Prague, and ſeemed reſolved to maintain the poſt he had taken on the other ſide the Moldau, his majeſty paſſed that river with a ſmall part of his own army, and being joined by that of marſhal Schwerin, determined to attack the enemy, tho' much ſuperior in number of troops, and poſted behind in a camp almoſt inacceſſible from every advantage of ſituation. All theſe obſtacles could not check the ardour of the Pruſſian officers and men, who vyed with each other in paſſing defiles, in croſſing marſhes, ſcaling the riſing grounds, and clearing entrenchments, 'till at length, after a very long and obſtinate engagement, and many ſignal examples of valour, the enemy were forced to abandon the field of battle, leaving behind them the greateſt part of their artillery, all their tents, all their baggage, and, in a word, their whole camp. We have indeed had a very conſiderable loſs in the perſon of marſhal Schwerin, who was unfortunately killed in the beginning of the action; and in the death of ſeveral others, who have laviſhed their blood, on this occaſion in the ſervice of their country But, on the other hand, the loſs of the Auſtrians has been ſo much the greater, not only in the number of their dead and wounded, but alſo in the prodigious number of priſoners we have taken; inſomuch that this battle may be reckoned deciſive in every ſenſe and in all reſpects. The enemy retired in the greateſt confuſion, and a part of the left wing fled with the utmoſt precipitation into the city of Prague. The Pruſſian troops are ſtill in purſuit of the remains of their army, and we have reaſon to hope, that this action will be no leſs glorious in its conſequences, than it was in itſelf.

Such are the firſt circumſtances of this memorable day, which the houſe of Auſtria will long remember, and which will ever be a monument of the intrepidity of the Pruſſian troops, and above all, of the protection with which Heaven continues to bleſs the juſtice of his majeſty's cauſe.

P S. (of the ſame date) We this moment learn, further, that the number of cannon taken from the enemy, amounts already to 250 pieces; a memorable circumſtance, which never happened in any of the former battles gained by his majeſty. The number of priſoners amounts already to 6 or 7000 men, beſides thoſe that have been taken ſince, and are ſtill making, the whole of the king's army that was engaged being in purſuit of the enemy, who, by accounts of the priſoners and deſerters, are in the utmoſt conſternation, and in a deſolation not to be deſcribed, being in want of every thing, and ſcarce having wherewithal to cover themſelves, from the total loſs of their equipages: In ſhort, all the circumſtances conſpire in making this the compleateſt and moſt deciſive victory that has happened for many years. According to the report of one of the general officers of the king's army, our loſs is not ſo conſiderable by far, as was at firſt imagined, and we have the ſatisfaction to know with certainty, that the king, and the princes his brothers, are well.

An officer ſent from the king of Pruſſia to his majeſty is daily expected, with further particulars of this great event.

The letters from the Hague, by the ſame expreſs, mention mention the Pruſſians having taken the city of Prague, ſword in hand, on the 8th; and that his Pruſſian majeſty had, immediately after the battle, ſent a body of Heſſians to join the army of obſervation in Weſtphalia.

'Tis ſaid the king of Pruſſia was at Cotta, near the frontier, when he received the news of the action near Richenberg; and that he announced it to his regiment of guards in theſe terms: "My children, ſee a happy beginning: The prince of Bevern has beat the Auſtrians at Richenberg. This, with God's aſſiſtance, promiſes us other ſucceſs" Immediately there was a general acclamation of "Long live the "king our incomparable monarch;" and the news paſſing from regiment to regiment, the ſhouts were repeated thro' every corps. We are further informed, that when his Pruſſian majeſty arrived the 22d in the evening at Peterſwaldt, the firſt place on the frontiers of Bohemia, he ſaid to marſhal Keith and his other general officers, "We are now, Gentlemen, got into Bohemia again: I give you joy; your conduct and the courage of my troops will do the reſt."

London, May 21 Yeſterday in the afternoon, the ſecond expreſs expected from Berlin (as mentioned in the Gazette Extraordinary) arrived at St. James's, and brought a letter from his Pruſſian majeſty to the king our ſovereign which we hear contained theſe lines "Immediately after the action of the 6th, I ſent off "Keith, with a body of troops to Prague, who has "taken the city ſword in hand, and made more pri"ſoners there, than we took in the field of battle."

We hear, that a courier lately diſpatched from Verſailles to Vienna, has been intercepted by ſome Pruſſian emiſſaries, who found upon him a plan of the operations concerted between the king of Pruſſia and one of his allies — If this is true, that ally muſt have been betrayed by ſome ſervants at home or abroad.

The Sandburn (a tender) William Peavy commander, from Pole Davy bay, about 6 miles ſouthward from Breſt, gives the following account, that on the 23d ult. ſailed from Breſt 3 ſhips of the line and a frigate, as ſaid to join 4 other men of war at Rochefort, and 22 ſhips for the Eaſt Indies: And that laſt tueſday ſailed 19 ſhips of the line with troops on board, ſuppoſed for America.

By all accounts the French privateers now go out in fleets, ſo that we have need to keep a good look out.

Portſmouth, May 19. Wedneſday morning arrived the Somerſet, of 74 guns Capt. Geary, from the Bay, with the Superbe of 800 tons, 24 guns, 100 ſeamen, and 150 ſoldiers, and the Renomée of 400 tons, 14 guns, 90 ſeamen, and 50 ſoldiers, both laden with ſoldier's cloathing, large ſums of money to pay the French troops in America, and large quantities of other ſtores.

ST. JOHN'S, ANTIGUA, June 25.

WE have advice from St. Chriſtopher's, that a maſter of a ſloop who arrived there on the 17th inſtant from Cork, declares, that on the 7th of May admiral Holbourne was in that harbour with 16 ſail of the line, and a great many tranſport ſhips; alſo that he had made a ſignal for ſailing, and that 4 ſhips more of the line were going in to join him.

John Young, Eſq; lieut. colonel, is appointed by his excellency the earl of Loudoun, lieutenant governor of Virginia, in the room of governor Dinwiddie.

St. John's, June 28. Yeſterday arrived here Capt. Conner, in a ſnow from Briſtol and Cork, which laſt port he left the 8th of May, under convoy of admiral Holbourn and the fleet for North America, from whom he parted on the 24th of the ſaid month, all ſafe and well, in Lat 43, 42. St John's, July 5. Yeſterday arrived Capt. Lynn, in a flag of truce from Martinico and Guardaloupe, with upwards of 20 captains and officers of Engliſh veſſels, and 100 common ſailors: Within the laſt month 40 veſſels have been carried into Guardaloupe, and there are now between 40 and 50 privateers cruizing to windward of this iſland; ſo 'tis not in the leaſt to be wondered that nothing eſcapes them.

One of the captains from Martinico ſays, that about a fortnight ago, a frigate and 5 ſtore ſhips came in there, which were bound for Louiſbourg, but could not poſſibly get in there, as it was blocked up by Engliſh men of war.

This Day arrived Capt. Gilbert from Bermuda, by whom there are Letters from Capt Tucker of the True Blue Privateer, adviſing, that he had been obliged to put into Bermuda, for a new Main maſt, having ſprung his on the 18th ult. that the Lyttelton Privateer was alſo there, and all well on board both Veſſels; and that on the 20th of June, he ſpoke with a French Flag of Truce from Miſſiſippi for Jamaica, with only 7 Engliſh Priſoners on board, which he had been informed was going only as a Spy; and that they intended to ſend others to the ſeveral Ports on the Continent for Intelligence, &c that he was alſo informed, of 7 French Men of War being daily expected at Miſſiſippi; and that a Privateer fitted out there, of 10 Guns, had taken and ſent in many Engliſh Veſſels: He met with nothing elſe remarkable
